

With the lifting of COVID restrictions 2022 has been a year of finally being able to get together. It has been wonderful to hear of QOVC sew days and gatherings happening again across the country. In June QOVC participated in Quilt Canada in Vancouver. As always it was a great opportunity to showcase what we do to quilters across the country.

The QOVC National Sew Day in February was once again a successful event. Using the Zoom platform allows us to meet from coast to coast to coast, share ideas, and reminds us of how far reaching our society truly is.

Our society continues to grow at a rapid pace. With our increased popularity also comes increased quilt requests. These requests involve more work than making a quilt. Coordinators and Representatives work very hard behind the scenes to ensure each individual request is followed from nomination to presentation. Recipients and nominators have expressed understanding surrounding wait times and shared that communication from QOVC assuring their request has been received and time expectations for quilt presentations is important and greatly appreciated.

Thank You to each and every QOVC volunteer. Each of you plays an important part in achieving our mission.

Thank You,

Lisa Compton Vice President
(Acting President)
